8 include:

9                   (1) abuse;

10                   (2) neglect;

11                   (3) dependency;

12                   (4) child in voluntary placement in state care;

13                   (5) termination of parental rights;

15                   (7) post termination of parental rights through adoption or other
16 permanency proceeding.

17           (b) A child is:

18                   (1) an individual under the age of 18; or

<sup>1</sup> This Model Act was drafted under the auspices of the ABA Section of Litigation Children’s Rights Litigation Committee with the assistance of the Bar-Youth Empowerment Program of the ABA Center on Children and the Law and First Star. The Act incorporates some language from the provisions of the NCCUSL Representation of Children in Abuse, Neglect, and Custody Proceedings Act.

28 (e) “Developmental level” is a measure of the ability to communicate and 29 understand others, taking into account such factors as age, mental capacity, level of 30 education, cultural background, and degree of language acquisition.<sup>4</sup>
31

32 Legislative Note: States should implement a mechanism to bring children into court
33 when they have been voluntarily placed into state care, if such procedures do not already exist.
34 Court action should be triggered after a specific number of days in voluntary care (not fewer 35 than 30 days, but not more than 90 days).
36

37 Commentary:
38

39 Under the Act, a “child’s lawyer” is a client-directed lawyer in a traditional attorney-client
40 relationship with the child. A “best interests advocate” does not function as the child’s lawyer 41 and is not bound by the child’s expressed wishes in determining what to advocate, although the 42 best interests advocate should consider those wishes.

44 The best interest advocate may be a lawyer or a lay person, such as a court-appointed special
45 advocate, or CASA. The best interests advocate assists the court in determining the best 46 interests of a child and will therefore perform many of the functions formerly attributable to 47 guardians ad litem, but best interests advocates are not to function as the child’s lawyer. A 48 lawyer appointed as a best interest advocate shall function as otherwise set forth in state law.
49

50 SECTION 2. APPLICABILITY AND RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAW.

51 (a) This [act] applies to an abuse and neglect proceeding pending or commenced on 52 or after [the effective date of this act].
53

54 (b) The child in these proceedings is a party.
55

56 SECTION 3. APPOINTMENT IN ABUSE OR NEGLECT PROCEEDING.

57 (a) The court shall appoint a child’s lawyer for each child who is the subject of a 58 petition in an abuse and neglect proceeding. The appointment of a child’s lawyer must be 59 made as soon as practicable to ensure effective representation of the child and, in any 60 event, before the first court hearing.

61 (b) In addition to the appointment of a child’s lawyer, the court may appoint a best
62 interest advocate to assist the court in determining the child’s best interests.

63 (c) The court may appoint one child’s lawyer to represent siblings if there is no
64 conflict of interest as defined under the applicable rules of professional conduct.<sup>5</sup> The

65 court may appoint additional counsel to represent individual siblings at a child’s lawyer’s
66 request due to a conflict of interest between or among the siblings.

67 (d) The applicable rules of professional conduct and any law governing the 68 obligations of lawyers to their clients shall apply to such appointed lawyers for children.

69 (e) The appointed child’s lawyer shall represent the child at all stages of the 70 proceedings, unless otherwise discharged by order of court.<sup>6</sup>

71 (f) A child’s right to counsel may not be waived at any court proceeding.

72

73 Commentary:

74

75 This act recognizes the right of every child to have quality legal representation and a voice in 76 any abuse, neglect, dependency, or termination of parental rights proceeding, regardless of 77 developmental level. Nothing in this Act precludes a child from retaining a lawyer. States
78 should provide a lawyer to a child who has been placed into state custody through a voluntary
79 placement arrangement. The fact that the child is in the state’s custody through the parent’s
80 voluntary decision should not diminish the child’s entitlement to a lawyer.

81

82 A best interest advocate does not replace the appointment of a lawyer for the child. A best
83 interest advocate serves to provide guidance to the court with respect to the child’s best interest
84 and does not establish a lawyer-client relationship with the child. Nothing in this Act restricts a
85 court’s ability to appoint a best interest advocate in any proceeding. Because this Act deals
86 specifically with lawyers for children, it will not further address the role of the best interest 87 advocate.

88

89 The child is entitled to conflict-free representation and the applicable rules of professional 90 conduct must be applied in the same manner as they would be applied for lawyers for adults. A 91 lawyer representing siblings should maintain the same lawyer-client relationship with respect to 92 each child.

94 SECTION 4. QUALIFICATIONS OF THE CHILD’S LAWYER.

95 (a) The court shall appoint as the child’s lawyer an individual who is qualified 96 through training and experience, according to standards established by [insert reference to 97 source of standards].

98 (b) Lawyers for children shall receive initial training and annual continuing legal 99 education that is specific to child welfare law. Lawyers for children shall be familiar with 100 all relevant federal, state, and local applicable laws.

101 (c) Lawyers for children shall not be appointed to new cases when their present caseload exceeds more than a reasonable number given the jurisdiction, the percent of the lawyer's practice spent on abuse and neglect cases, the complexity of the case, and other relevant factors.

Legislative Note: States that adopt training standards and standards of practice for children's lawyers should include the bracketed portion of this section and insert a reference to the state laws, court rules, or administrative guidelines containing those standards.<sup>7</sup>

Jurisdictions are urged to specify a case limit at the time of passage of this Act.

Commentary:

States should establish minimum training requirements for lawyers who represent children. Such training should focus on applicable law, skills needed to develop a meaningful lawyer-client relationship with child-clients, techniques to assess capacity in children, as well as the many interdisciplinary issues that arise in child welfare cases.

The lawyer needs to spend enough time on each abuse and neglect case to establish a lawyer-client relationship and zealously advocate for the client. A lawyer's caseload must allow realistic performance of functions assigned to the lawyer under the [Act]. The amount of time and the number of children a lawyer can represent effectively will differ based on a number of factors, including type of case, the demands of the jurisdiction, whether the lawyer is affiliated with a children's law office, whether the lawyer is assisted by investigators or other child welfare professionals, and the percent of the lawyer's practice spent on abuse and neglect cases. States are encouraged to conduct caseload analyses to determine guidelines for lawyers representing children in abuse and neglect cases.

SECTION 5. ORDER OF APPOINTMENT.

(a) Subject to subsection (b), an order of appointment of a child's lawyer shall be in writing and on the record, identify the lawyer who will act in that capacity, and clearly set forth the terms of the appointment, including the reasons for the appointment, rights of access as provided under Section 8, and applicable terms of compensation as provided under Section 12.

(b) In an order of appointment issued under subsection (a), the court may identify a private organization, law school clinical program or governmental program through which a child's lawyer will be provided. The organization or program shall designate the lawyer who will act in that capacity and notify the parties and the court of the name of the assigned lawyer as soon as practicable.<sup>8</sup> Additionally, the organization or program shall notify the parties and the court of any changes in the individual assignment.

141           SECTION 6. DURATION OF APPOINTMENT.

142           Unless otherwise provided by a court order, an appointment of a child’s lawyer in 143 an abuse and neglect proceeding continues in effect until the lawyer is discharged by court
 144 order or the case is dismissed.<sup>9</sup> The appointment includes all stages thereof, from removal
 145 from the home or initial appointment through all available appellate proceedings. With 146 the permission of the court, the lawyer may arrange for supplemental or separate counsel
 147 to handle proceedings at an appellate stage.<sup>10</sup>

148 Commentary:

149 As long as the child remains in state custody, even if the state custody is long-term or permanent,
 150 the child should retain the right to counsel so that the child’s lawyer can deal with the issues that 151 may arise while the child is in custody but the case is not before the court.

152

153           SECTION 7. DUTIES OF CHILD’S LAWYER AND SCOPE OF 154 REPRESENTATION.

155           (a) A child’s lawyer shall participate in any proceeding concerning the child with 156 the same rights and obligations as any other lawyer for a party to the proceeding.

157           (b) The duties of a child’s lawyer include, but are not limited to:

158                   (1) taking all steps reasonably necessary to represent the client in the 159 proceeding, including but not limited to: interviewing and counseling the client, preparing 160 a case theory and strategy, preparing for and participating in negotiations and hearings, 161 drafting and submitting motions, memoranda and orders, and such other steps as 162 established by the applicable standards of practice for lawyers acting on behalf of children
 163 in this jurisdiction;

164                   (2) reviewing and accepting or declining, after consultation with the client,
 165 any proposed stipulation for an order affecting the child and explaining to the court the 166 basis for any opposition;

167                   (3) taking action the lawyer considers appropriate to expedite the proceeding
 168 and the resolution of contested issues;

169                   (4) where appropriate, after consultation with the client, discussing the 170 possibility of settlement or the use of alternative forms of dispute resolution and 171 participating in such processes to the extent permitted under the law of this state;<sup>11</sup>

172                   (5) meeting with the child prior to each hearing and for at least one in-person
 173 meeting every quarter;

174 (6) where appropriate and consistent with both confidentiality and the child's 175 legal interests, consulting with the best interests advocate;

176 (7) prior to every hearing, investigating and taking necessary legal action 177 regarding the child's medical, mental health, social, education, and overall well-being;

178 (8) visiting the home, residence, or any prospective residence of the child,
179 including each time the placement is changed;

180 (9) seeking court orders or taking any other necessary steps in accordance 181 with the child's direction to ensure that the child's health, mental health, educational, 182 developmental, cultural and placement needs are met; and

183 (10) representing the child in all proceedings affecting the issues before the 184 court, including hearings on appeal or referring the child's case to the appropriate 185 appellate counsel as provided for by/mandated by [insert local rule/law etc.].

186
187 Commentary:

188
189 The national standards mentioned in (b)(1) include the ABA Standards of Practice for Lawyers
190 who Represent Children in Abuse and Neglect Cases.

192 In order to comply with the duties outlined in this section, lawyers must have caseloads that 193 allow realistic performance of these functions.

194
195 The child's lawyer may request authority from the court to pursue issues on behalf of the child,
196 administratively or judicially, even if those issues do not specifically arise from the court
197 appointment.<sup>12</sup> Such ancillary matters include special education, school discipline hearings,
198 mental health treatment, delinquency or criminal issues, status offender matters, guardianship,
199 adoption, paternity, probate, immigration matters, medical care coverage, SSI eligibility, youth
200 transitioning out of care issues, postsecondary education opportunity qualification, and tort
201 actions for injury, as appropriate.<sup>13</sup> The lawyer should make every effort to ensure that the child 202 is represented by legal counsel in all ancillary legal proceedings, either personally, when the 203 lawyer is competent to do so, or through referral or collaboration. Having one lawyer represent 204 the child across multiple proceedings is valuable because the lawyer is better able to understand 205 and fully appreciate the various issues as they arise and how those issues may affect other 206 proceedings.

208 (c) When the child is capable of directing the representation by expressing his or her 209 objectives, the child's lawyer shall maintain a normal client-lawyer relationship with the 210 child in accordance with the rules of professional conduct. In a developmentally 211 appropriate manner, the lawyer shall elicit the child's wishes and advise the child as to

212 options.

213

214 Commentary:

215

216 The lawyer-client relationship for the child’s lawyer is fundamentally indistinguishable from the 217 lawyer-client relationship in any other situation and includes duties of client direction,<sup>14</sup>
 218 confidentiality,<sup>15</sup> diligence,<sup>16</sup> competence,<sup>17</sup> loyalty,<sup>18</sup> communication,<sup>19</sup> and the duty to provide 219 independent advice.<sup>20</sup> Client direction requires the lawyer to abide by the client’s decision about 220 the objectives of the representation. In order for the child to have an independent voice in abuse
 221 and neglect proceedings, the lawyer shall advocate for the child’s counseled and expressed
 222 wishes.<sup>21</sup> Moreover, providing the child with an independent and client-directed lawyer ensures 223 that the child’s legal rights and interests are adequately protected.

224

225 The child’s lawyer needs to explain his or her role to the client and, if applicable, explain in what 226 strictly limited circumstances the lawyer cannot advocate for the client’s expressed wishes and in 227 what circumstances the lawyer may be required to reveal confidential information. This 228 explanation should occur during the first meeting so the client understands the terms of the 229 relationship.

230

231 In addition to explaining the role of the child’s lawyer, the lawyer should explain the legal 232 process to the child in a developmentally appropriate manner as required by Rule 1.4 of the ABA
 233 Model Rules of Professional Conduct or its equivalent.<sup>22</sup> This explanation can and will change
 234 based on age, cognitive ability, and emotional maturity of the child. The lawyer needs to take the 235 time to explain thoroughly and in a way that allows and encourages the child to ask questions
 236 and that ensures the child’s understanding. The lawyer should also facilitate the child’s 237 participation in the proceeding (See Section 9).

238

239 In order to determine the objectives of the representation of the child, the child’s lawyer should 240 develop a relationship with the client. The lawyer should achieve a thorough knowledge of the 241 child’s circumstances and needs. The lawyer should visit the child in the child’s home, school,
 242 or other appropriate place where the child is comfortable. The lawyer should observe the child’s 243 interactions with parents, foster parents, and other caregivers. The lawyer should maintain 244 regular and ongoing contact with the child throughout the case.

245

246 The child’s lawyer helps to make the child’s wishes and voice heard but is not merely the child’s

247 mouthpiece. As with any lawyer, a child’s lawyer is both an advocate and a counselor for the 248 client. Without unduly influencing the child, the lawyer should advise the child by providing 249 options and information to assist the child in making decisions. The lawyer should explain the 250 practical effects of taking various positions, the likelihood that a court will accept particular 251 arguments, and the impact of such decisions on the child, other family members, and future legal 252 proceedings.<sup>23</sup> The lawyer should investigate the relevant facts, interview persons with 253 significant knowledge of the child’s history, review relevant records, and work with others in the 254 case.

255

256 (d) The child’s lawyer shall determine whether the child has diminished capacity
257 pursuant to the Model Rules of Professional Conduct. {STATES MAY CONSIDER
258 INSERTING THE FOLLOWING TWO SENTENCES:} [Under this subsection a child
259 shall be presumed to be capable of directing representation at the age of _____. The 260 presumption of diminished capacity is rebutted if, in the sole discretion of the lawyer, the 261 child is deemed capable of directing representation.] In making the determination, the 262 lawyer should consult the child and may consult other individuals or entities that can 263 provide the child’s lawyer with the information and assistance necessary to determine the 264 child’s ability to direct the representation.

265 When a child client has diminished capacity, the child’s lawyer shall make a good
266 faith effort to determine the child’s needs and wishes. The lawyer shall, as far as 267 reasonably possible, maintain a normal client-lawyer relationship with the client and fulfill
268 the duties as outlined in Section 7(b) of this Act. During a temporary period or on a 269 particular issue where a normal client-lawyer relationship is not reasonably possible to 270 maintain, the child’s lawyer shall make a substituted judgment determination. A 271 substituted judgment determination includes determining what the child would decide if he 272 or she were capable of making an adequately considered decision, and representing the 273 child in accordance with that determination. The lawyer should take direction from the 274 child as the child develops the capacity to direct the lawyer. The lawyer shall advise the 275 court of the determination of capacity and any subsequent change in that determination.

278 Commentary:

279

280 A determination of incapacity may be incremental and issue-specific, thus enabling the child’s 281 lawyer to continue to function as a client-directed lawyer as to major questions in the 282 proceeding. Determination of diminished capacity requires ongoing re-assessment. A child may 283 be able to direct the lawyer with respect to a particular issue at one time but not another.
284 Similarly, a child may be able to determine some positions in the case, but not others. For 285 guidance in assessing diminished capacity, see the commentary to Section (e). The lawyer shall 286 advise the court of the determination of capacity and any subsequent change in that

287 determination.

288

289 In making a substituted judgment determination, the child's lawyer may wish to seek guidance 290 from appropriate professionals and others with knowledge of the child, including the advice of 291 an expert. A substituted judgment determination is not the same as determining the child's best 292 interests; determination of a child's best interests remains solely the province of the court.

293 Rather, it involves determining what the child would decide if he or she were able to make an 294 adequately considered decision.<sup>24</sup> A lawyer should determine the child's position based on 295 objective facts and information, not personal beliefs. To assess the needs and interests of this
296 child, the lawyer should observe the child in his or her environment, and consult with experts.<sup>25</sup>

297

298 In formulating a substituted judgment position, the child's lawyer's advocacy should be child-
299 centered, research-informed, permanency-driven, and holistic.<sup>26</sup> The child's needs and interests,
300 not the adults' or professionals' interests, must be the center of all advocacy. For example, 301 lawyers representing very young children must truly see the world through the child's eyes and 302 formulate their approach from that perspective, gathering information and gaining insight into 303 the child's experiences to inform advocacy related to placement, services, treatment and 304 permanency.<sup>27</sup> The child's lawyer should be proactive and seek out opportunities to observe and 305 interact with the very young child client. It is also essential that lawyers for very young children 306 have a firm working knowledge of child development and special entitlements for children under 307 age five.<sup>28</sup>

309 When determining a substituted judgment position, the lawyer shall take into consideration the 310 child's legal interests based on objective criteria as set forth in the laws applicable to the 311 proceeding, the goal of expeditious resolution of the case and the use of the least restrictive or 312 detrimental alternatives available. The child's lawyer should seek to speed the legal process, 313 while also maintaining the child's critical relationships.

315 The child's lawyer should not confuse inability to express a preference with unwillingness to 316 express a preference. If an otherwise competent child chooses not to express a preference on a 317 particular matter, the child's lawyer should determine if the child wishes the lawyer to take no
318 position in the proceeding, or if the child wishes the lawyer or someone else to make the decision
319 for him or her. In either case, the lawyer is bound to follow the client's direction. A child may 320 be able to direct the lawyer with respect to a particular issue at one time but not at another. A 321 child may be able to determine some positions in the case but not others.

323 (e) When the child’s lawyer reasonably believes that the client has diminished
324 capacity, is at risk of substantial physical, financial or other harm unless action is taken,
325 and cannot adequately act in the client's own interest, the lawyer may take reasonably 326 necessary protective action, including consulting with individuals or entities that have the 327 ability to take action to protect the client and, in appropriate cases, seeking the 328 appointment of a best interest advocate or investigator to make an independent 329 recommendation to the court with respect to the best interests of the child.

330 When taking protective action, the lawyer is impliedly authorized under Model Rule 331 1.6(a) to reveal information about the child, but only to the extent reasonably necessary to 332 protect the child’s interests.<sup>29</sup> Information relating to the representation of a child with 333 diminished capacity is protected by Rule 1.6 and Rule 1.14 of the ABA Model Rules of 334 Professional Conduct. [OR ENTER STATE RULE CITATION]

335

336 Commentary:

337

338 Consistent with Rule 1.14, ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct (2004), the child’s lawyer
339 should determine whether the child has sufficient maturity to understand and form an attorney-
340 client relationship and whether the child is capable of making reasoned judgments and engaging 341 in meaningful communication. It is the responsibility of the child’s lawyer to determine
342 whether the child suffers from diminished capacity. This decision shall be made after sufficient 343 contact and regular communication with the client. Determination about capacity should be 344 grounded in insights from child development science and should focus on the child’s decision-
345 making process rather than the child’s choices themselves. Lawyers should be careful not to 346 conclude that the child suffers diminished capacity from a client’s insistence upon a course of 347 action that the lawyer considers unwise or at variance with lawyer’s view.<sup>30</sup>

348

349 When determining the child’s capacity the lawyer should elicit the child’s expressed wishes in a
350 developmentally appropriate manner. The lawyer should not expect the child to convey 351 information in the same way as an adult client. A child’s age is not determinative of diminished
352 capacity. For example, even very young children are regarded as having opinions that are 353 entitled to weight in legal proceedings concerning their custody.<sup>31</sup>

354

355 Criteria for determining diminished capacity include the child’s developmental stage, cognitive 356 ability, emotional and mental development, ability to communicate, ability to understand
357 consequences, consistency of the child’s decisions, strength of wishes and the opinions of others,
358 including social workers, therapists, teachers, family members or a hired expert.<sup>32</sup> To assist in

359 the assessment, the lawyer should ask questions in developmentally appropriate language to 360 determine whether the child understands the nature and purpose of the proceeding and the risks
 361 and benefits of a desired position.<sup>33</sup> A child may have the ability to make certain decisions, but 362 not others. A child with diminished capacity often has the ability to understand, deliberate upon,
 363 and reach conclusions about matters affecting the child's own well-being such as sibling visits, 364 kinship visits and school choice and should continue to direct counsel in those areas in which he 365 or she does have capacity. The lawyer should continue to assess the child's capacity as it may 366 change over time.

 368 When the lawyer determines that the child has diminished capacity, the child is at risk of 369 substantial harm, the child cannot adequately act in his or her own interest, and the use of the 370 lawyer's counseling role is unsuccessful, the lawyer may take protective action. Substantial harm
 371 includes physical, sexual and psychological harm. Protective action includes consultation with 372 family members, or professionals who work with the child. Lawyers may also utilize a period of 373 reconsideration to allow for an improvement or clarification of circumstances or to allow for an 374 improvement in the child's capacity.<sup>34</sup> This rule reminds lawyers that, among other things, they 375 should ultimately be guided by the wishes and values of the child to the extent they can be 376 determined.<sup>35</sup>

 378 "Information relating to the representation is protected by Model Rule 1.6. Therefore, unless 379 authorized to do so, the lawyer may not disclose such information. When taking protective 380 action pursuant to this section, the lawyer is impliedly authorized to make necessary disclosures,
 381 even when the client directs the lawyer to the contrary."<sup>36</sup> However the lawyer should make 382 every effort to avoid disclosures if at all possible. Where disclosures are unavoidable, the lawyer
 383 must limit the disclosures as much as possible. Prior to any consultation, the lawyer should 384 consider the impact on the client's position, and whether the individual is a party who might use 385 the information to further his or her own interests. "At the very least, the lawyer should 386 determine whether it is likely that the person or entity consulted with will act adversely to the 387 client's interests before discussing matters related to the client."<sup>37</sup> If any disclosure by the 388 lawyer will have a negative impact on the client's case or the lawyer-client relationship, the 389 lawyer must consider whether representation can continue and whether the lawyer-client
 390 relationship can be re-established. "The lawyer's position in such cases is an unavoidably 391 difficult one."<sup>38</sup>

395 extreme cases, i.e. where the child is at risk of substantial physical harm, cannot act in his or her 396 own interest and all protective action remedies have been exhausted. Requesting the judge to 397 appoint a best interest advocate may undermine the relationship the lawyer has established with 398 the child. It also potentially compromises confidential information the child may have revealed 399 to the lawyer. The lawyer cannot ever become the best interest advocate, in part due to 400 confidential information that the lawyer receives in the course of representation. Nothing in this 401 section restricts a court from independently appointing a best interest advocate when it deems the 402 appointment appropriate.

404 SECTION 8. ACCESS TO CHILD AND INFORMATION RELATING TO THE 405 CHILD.

406 (a) Subject to subsections (b) and (c), when the court appoints the child's lawyer, it
407 shall issue an order, with notice to all parties, authorizing the child's lawyer to have access 408 to:

409 (1) the child; and

410 (2) confidential information regarding the child, including the child's 411 educational, medical, and mental health records, social services agency files, court records
412 including court files involving allegations of abuse or neglect of the child, any delinquency
413 records involving the child, and other information relevant to the issues in the proceeding,
414 and reports that form the basis of any recommendation made to the court.

415 (b) A child's record that is privileged or confidential under law other than this [act]
416 may be released to a child's lawyer appointed under this [act] only in accordance with that 417 law, including any requirements in that law for notice and opportunity to object to release
418 of records. Nothing in this act shall diminish or otherwise change the attorney-client 419 privilege of the child, nor shall the child have any lesser rights than any other party in 420 regard to this or any other evidentiary privilege. Information that is privileged under the 421 lawyer-client relationship may not be disclosed except as otherwise permitted by law of this 422 state other than this [act].

423 (c) An order issued pursuant to subsection (a) shall require that a child's lawyer
424 maintain the confidentiality of information released pursuant to Model Rule 1.6. The court 425 may impose any other condition or limitation on an order of access which is required by 426 law, rules of professional conduct, the child's needs, or the circumstances of the 427 proceeding.

428 (d) The custodian of any record regarding the child shall provide access to the 429 record to an individual authorized access by order issued pursuant to subsection (a).

430 (e) Subject to subsection (b), an order issued pursuant to subsection (a) takes effect
431 upon issuance.<sup>39</sup>

SECTION 9. PARTICIPATION IN PROCEEDINGS.

(a) Each child who is the subject of an abuse and neglect proceeding has the right to attend and fully participate in all hearings related to his or her case.

(b) Each child shall receive notice from the child welfare agency worker and the child's lawyer of his or her right to attend the court hearings.

(c) If the child is not present at the hearing, the court shall determine whether the child was properly notified of his or her right to attend the hearing, whether the child wished to attend the hearing, whether the child had the means (transportation) to attend, and the reasons for the non-appearance.

(d) If the child wished to attend and was not transported to court the matter shall be continued.

(e) The child's presence shall only be excused after the lawyer for the child has consulted with the child and, with informed consent, the child has waived his or her right to attend.

(f) A child's lawyer appointed under this [act] is entitled to:

(1) receive a copy of each pleading or other record filed with the court in the proceeding;

(2) receive notice of and attend each hearing in the proceeding [and participate and receive copies of all records in any appeal that may be filed in the proceeding];

(3) receive notice of and participate in any case staffing or case management conference regarding the child in an abuse and neglect proceeding; and

(4) receive notice of any intent to change the child's placement. In the case of an emergency change, the lawyer shall receive notice as soon as possible but no later than 48 hours following the change of placement.

(g) A child's lawyer appointed under this [act] may not engage in ex parte contact with the court except as authorized by the applicable rules of professional conduct, court order, or other law.

(h) Subject to court approval, a party may call any best interest advocate as a witness for the purpose of cross-examination regarding the advocate's report, even if the advocate is not listed as a witness by a party.

467 Commentary:

469 Courts need to provide the child with notification of each hearing. The Court should enforce the 470 child's right to attend and fully participate in all hearings related to his or her abuse and neglect
471 proceeding.<sup>41</sup> Having the child in court emphasizes for the judge and all parties that this hearing 472 is about the child. Factors to consider regarding the child's presence at court and participation in 473 the proceedings include: whether the child wants to attend, the child's age, the child's 474 developmental ability, the child's emotional maturity, the purpose of the hearing and whether the 475 child would be severely traumatized by such attendance.

476

477 Lawyers should consider the following options in determining how to provide the most 478 meaningful experience for the child to participate: allowing the child to be present throughout 479 the entire hearing, presenting the child's testimony in chambers adhering to all applicable rules
480 of evidence, arranging for the child to visit the courtroom in advance, video or teleconferencing 481 the child into the hearing, allowing the child to be present only when the child's input is 482 required, excluding the child during harmful testimony, and presenting the child's statements in 483 court adhering to all applicable rules of evidence.

484

485 Courts should reasonably accommodate the child to ensure the hearing is a meaningful 486 experience for the child. The court should consider: scheduling hearing dates and times when the 487 child is available and least likely to disrupt the child's routine, setting specific hearing times to 488 prevent the child from having to wait, making courtroom waiting areas child friendly, and 489 ensuring the child will be transported to and from each hearing.

490

491 The lawyer for the child plays an important role in the child's court participation. The lawyer
492 shall ensure that the child is properly prepared for the hearing. The lawyer should meet the child 493 in advance to let the child know what to expect at the hearing, who will be present, what their 494 roles are, what will be discussed, and what decisions will be made. If the child would like to 495 address the court, the lawyer should counsel with the child on what to say and how to say it.
496 After the hearing, the lawyer should explain the judge's ruling and allow the child to ask 497 questions about the proceeding.

499 Because of the wide range of roles assumed by best interest advocates in different jurisdictions, 500 the question of whether a best interest advocate may be called as a witness should be left to the 501 discretion of the court.

Report

“The participation of counsel on behalf of all parties subject to juvenile and family court proceedings is essential to the administration of justice and to the fair and accurate resolution of issues at all stages of those proceedings.” IJA/ABA, Juvenile Justice Standards, Standards Relating to Counsel for Private Parties, Std. 1.1, at 11 (1980)(emphasis added).

Courts in abuse and neglect cases dramatically shape a child’s entire future in that the court decides where a child lives, with whom the child will live and whether the child’s parental rights will be terminated. No other legal proceeding that pertains to children has such a major effect on their lives. While the outcome of an abuse and neglect case has drastic implications for both the parents and the children involved, only children’s physical liberty is threatened. An abuse and neglect case that results in removal of the child from the home may immediately or ultimately result in the child being thrust into an array of confusing and frightening situations wherein the State moves the child from placement to placement with total strangers, puts the child in a group home, commits the child to an institution, or even locks the child up in detention for running away or otherwise violating a court order. Our notion of basic civil rights, and ABA Policy and Standards, demand that children and youth have a trained legal advocate to speak on their behalf and to protect their legal rights. There would be no question about legal representation for a child who was facing a month in juvenile detention, so why is there an issue for a child in an abuse and neglect case, where State intervention may last up to 18 years? The trauma faced by children in these proceedings has been recognized by at least one federal court which held that foster children have a constitutional right to adequate legal representation.<sup>1</sup>

Despite the gravity of these cases, the extent to which a child is entitled to legal representation varies not only from state to state, but from case to case, and all too often, from hearing to hearing. The root of these inconsistencies lies in the lack of a mandate for legal representation for children in abuse and neglect cases, and the lack of uniform standards for the legal representation of children, coupled with the lack of sufficient training necessary for attorneys to provide adequate representation to their child clients.

In 1996 the ABA adopted the ABA Standards of Practice for Lawyers Who Represent Children in Abuse and Neglect Cases (hereinafter “ABA Abuse and Neglect Standards”) calling for a lawyer for every child subject to abuse and neglect proceedings.<sup>2</sup> The ABA Abuse and Neglect standards state that “All children subject to court proceedings involving allegations of child abuse and neglect should have legal representation as long as the court jurisdiction continue.” In 2005, the ABA unanimously passed policy that calls upon Congress, the States, and territories to ensure that “all dependent youth . . . be on equal footing with other parties in the dependency proceeding and have the right to quality legal representation, not simply an appointed lay guardian ad litem or lay volunteer advocate with no legal training, acting on their behalf in this court process.”

The proposed Model Act Governing the Representation of Children in Abuse, Neglect, and Dependency Proceedings (hereinafter “Model Act”) focuses on the representation of children in abuse and neglect cases to ensure that states have a model of ethical representation for children that is consistent with the ABA Abuse and Neglect Standards,<sup>3</sup> ABA Policy, and the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct (hereinafter “ABA Model Rules”).

Although many states require that a lawyer be appointed for a child in an abuse and neglect proceeding, some require that the child’s lawyer be “client directed” and others require the lawyer to act as a guardian ad litem whereby the attorney is charged with the duty of protecting and serving the “best interests” of the child. Often there is not “careful delineation of the distinctions between the ethical responsibilities of a lawyer to the client and the professional obligations of the lay guardian ad litem as a best interests witness for the court.”<sup>4</sup> The states’ use of different statutory language and mandated roles for child representation has led to much confusion within the field.

The proposed Model Act conforms to the clearly stated preference in the ABA Abuse and Neglect Standards for a client-directed lawyer for each child. Similarly, the proposed Model Act is consistent with the ABA Model Rules. The Model Act states that the child’s lawyer should form an attorney-client relationship which is “fundamentally indistinguishable from the attorney-client relationship in any other situation and which includes duties of client direction, confidentiality, diligence, competence, loyalty, communication, and the duty to advise.”<sup>5</sup>

Consonant with the ABA Model Rules, the drafters of the Model Act started from the premise that all child clients have the capacity to form an attorney-client relationship. An attorney must enter into representation of a child treating the child client as he or she would any other client to every extent possible. The attorney should give the child frank advice on what he or she thinks is the best legal remedy to achieve the child’s expressed wishes. This decision should not be based on the attorney’s mores or personal opinions; rather it should focus on the attorney’s knowledge of the situation, the law, options available and the child's wishes. The proposed Model Act also provides specific guidance for lawyers charged with representing those child clients with diminished capacity. Some children (including infants, pre-verbal children, and children who are mentally or developmentally challenged) do not have the capacity to form a lawyer-client relationship. These child clients should be considered the exception, not the rule, and the structure of representation for children as a whole should be based upon a theory of competence and capacity.

Providing children in abuse and neglect cases with a client-directed 'traditional' lawyer is consistent with the thinking of national children's law experts. A conference on the representation of children was held at Fordham Law School in 1995 entitled Ethical Issues in the Legal Representation of Children. The conference examined the principles set out in the then-proposed (later adopted) ABA Abuse and Neglect Standards and conferees clearly recommended that lawyers for children should act as lawyers, not as guardians ad litem.<sup>6</sup> The co-sponsors and participants at the Fordham conference included national children's law organizations and many ABA entities.<sup>7</sup>

Ten years later in 2006, children's law experts gathered again at a conference at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV), to review the state of legal representation of children. Like the Fordham Conference, the UNLV participants produced a set of recommendations.<sup>8</sup> The UNLV Recommendations encourage lawyers to seek to empower children by helping them develop decision-making capacity. Regarding the role of the lawyer, the UNLV Recommendations strongly support client-directed representation for children capable of making considered decisions.<sup>9</sup> Again, the list of co-sponsors and participants included nationally respected children's law organizations and many ABA entities.<sup>10</sup>

101A

Consistent with the ABA Abuse and Neglect Standards, ABA policy, and the recommendations of national children’s law experts, Section 3 of this Model Act mandates that an attorney, acting in a traditional role, should be appointed for every child who is the subject of an abuse or neglect proceeding.<sup>11</sup> Attorneys can identify legal issues regarding their child clients, use their legal skills to ensure the protection of their clients’ rights and needs, and advocate for their clients. The Model Act requires lawyers to complete a thorough and independent investigation and participate fully in all stages of the litigation. Lawyers for children, as lawyers for any client, have a role as a counselor to their clients and should assist their clients in exploring the practical effects of taking various positions, the likelihood that a court will accept particular arguments, and the impact of such decisions on the child, other family members, and future legal proceedings.<sup>12</sup>

Lawyers for children allow children to be participants in the proceedings that affect their lives and safety. Children who are represented by a lawyer often feel the process is fairer because they had a chance to participate and to be heard. Consequently, children are more likely to accept the court’s decision because of their own involvement in the process.

Requiring lawyers to represent children in abuse and neglect cases is also consistent with federal law. The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) requires the appointment of a “guardian ad litem” for a child as a condition of receiving federal funds for child abuse prevention and treatment programs. Providing a child with a lawyer is consistent with the requirements of CAPTA. No state with a lawyer model has been held out of compliance with CAPTA and Health and Human Services (HHS) has issued guidance suggesting that appointing counsel for a child promotes the child’s “best interest” consistent with CAPTA.<sup>13</sup>

The Model Act also provides lawyers guidance when representing children with diminished capacity, which includes young children. Like all children in these proceedings, young children are entitled to proceedings that fully examine and address their needs, including inter alia their physical, behavioral, and developmental health and well-being, their education and early-learning needs, their need for family permanency and stability, and their need to be safe from harm. The Model Act also allows states to set an age of capacity if they so choose.

The Model Act allows and welcomes “best interest advocates” in child welfare cases. A best interest advocate is defined as “an individual, not functioning or intended to function as the child’s lawyer, appointed by the court to assist in determining the best interests of the child.”<sup>14</sup> The advisor may be a court-appointed special advocate (CASA), a guardian ad litem or other person who has received training specific to the best interest of the child. The Act endorses and in no way restricts the widespread use of CASAs to fulfill the role of court appointed advisor.<sup>15</sup>

A state’s law regarding abuse and neglect proceedings should be designed to provide children involved in an abuse and neglect case with a well-trained, high quality lawyer who is well-compensated and whose caseload allows for effective representation. Lawyers for children are essential for ensuring that the child’s legal rights are protected. “Unless children are allowed by lawyers to set the objectives of their cases, they would not only be effectively deprived of a number of constitutional rights, they would be denied procedures that are fundamental to the rule of law.”<sup>16</sup>

Children in dependency court proceedings are often taken from their parents, their siblings and extended families, their schools, and everything that is familiar to them. Children and youth deserve a voice when important and life-altering decisions are being made about them. They deserve to have their opinions heard, valued and considered. They have interests that are often distinct or are opposed to those of the state and their parents in dependency proceedings and, as the ABA has recognized many times, they deserve ethical legal representation.

In preparing this Model Act, the drafters have taken into consideration the enormous contributions of various organizations and advocates in defining standards of representation, most notably that of the American Bar Association (ABA), the National Association of Counsel for Children (NACC), the Uniform Law Commission (ULC), participants in the Representing Children in Families UNLV Conference, and the states themselves. In addition, drafters have sought input from the ABA Standing Committee on Ethics, various sections within the ABA, and more than 30 children’s law centers around the country who represent children every day.

<sup>15</sup> The Court Appointed Special Advocate is a lay volunteer who advocates as a non-lawyer on behalf of a child in child abuse and neglect proceedings. Volunteers are screened and trained at the local level, but all CASA programs that are affiliated with the National Court Appointed Special Advocate Association must comply with the standards issued by that organization. See www.nationalcasa.org. In addition, many states have established their own standards to ensure that the volunteers representing children are competent and possess relevant training and experience. See generally Michael S. Piraino, Lay Representation of Abused and Neglected Children: Variations on Court Appointed Special Advocate Programs and Their Relationship to Quality Advocacy, 1 JOURNAL OF CENTER FOR CHILDREN AND THE COURTS 63 (1999). The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention of the United States Department of Justice is authorized to enter into cooperative agreements with the National CASA Association to expand CASA programs nationally. See 42 U.S.C.A. § 13013 (2005 & Supp. 2006). One of the key strengths of the CASA program is that a CASA volunteer generally represents only one child at a time. Moreover, an attorney for the child working in tandem with a CASA volunteer can provide a powerful “team” approach in juvenile court. In addition, CASA volunteers may have access to the CASA program’s own legal representative for legal advice.
